

Rogers Hall: This is Rogers Hall! It houses our chemistry and physics classes so it is full of a bunch of labs and the typical lecture style classrooms that you would see in movies. I have had chemistry classes this year and last year so you can say I've spent a lot of time in this building. I've absolutely loved it because you get to do real labs with chemicals which is why you see all the little chimneys on the roof because there are fume hoods in every single lab. Usually if we see a fire truck on campus, we think it's going to Rogers because someone blew something up, but most of the time they're just passing through! 😊
