

Memorial Hall

Memorial hall is home to several important things for students. First it has a pool where students can go to swim laps. This is included in your rec center fee. It also has a large basketball gym where the team played prior to moving to our new convocation center. It still houses a few of the athletic offices. And lastly, inside has a few recently renovated classrooms, and a great study area. I've had a couple classes in here before, and I love the study area. It's always quiet and there's always a place to sit because no one remembers it.

Just outside the memorial hall, we have our memorial area. This area surrounds the flagpole and consists of several large stone slabs. Each slab is inscribed at the top with a conflict the U.S. has been involved in from World War 1 on to the present. Below that is inscribed all the names of Alumni who have graduated from UNG and lost their lives in the conflict. Every morning at 7 AM and every evening at 5 PM, the cadets come down here, the bugle plays rouse in the morning and retreat in the evening. This is one of my favorite traditions on campus. When the ceremony is going on, just for a minute, everything on campus freezes. Cars stop driving, everyone faces the flag and pays their respects
