

Loyd Strickland Academic Building- Gainesville Campus Tour

Background Info: The Lody Strickland Academic Building is in front of the Rec. Center (Hughes Mills Physical Education Center). It is the second building on our physical tour.

Michelle: This building is the one of the oldest on our Gainesville campus. In this building you will have all the social science classes such as American Government, History, Psychology, and Political Science. These are just some examples.

Michelle: An important note that I wanted to mention is that this building is home to the Center of Global Engagement. It is an office that that helps with providing the student with information about studying abroad.

Michelle: We have about 300 study aboard programs offered here at UNG. I want you all to know that this opportunity is possible. Our advisors here at the Center for Global Engagement will help you out with the process from finding financial aid to making sure you can fit it in your selected semester.

Michelle: Many of our students here at UNG apply for the Gilman Scholarship and have been successful in obtaining it. It can help with up to $5,000. One of our past campus reps had Gilman and other scholarships that financed her trip to Spain. She didn't have to pay a dime!

Michelle: I encourage you to do study aboard in your college career because this is a time in which you are most able to freely take opportunities and learn about new cultures. Some of my friends who have done study aboard love it! I know I want to do it my junior year.
