"Going to New Zealand gave me the chance to travel to the other side of the world with friends, while doing what I'm passionate about: learning about other cultures, widening my perspective and becoming a better educator. The experience gave me new ideas and strategies that I could bring back as a stronger teacher here and left me with fun memories to hold onto with the friends I traveled with."

Kelly Jo Plante, New Zealand

“Student teaching at the American School of Valencia was an eye-opening experience. As an educator, it is important to have different perspectives about cultures and traveling to Valencia allowed me to gain that insight. Learning about the culture and their various teaching techniques, has helped me become a more inclusive teacher in my classroom.”
