North Georgia College and State University

Following the Civil War, the abandoned U. S. Mint property in Dahlonega was given to the State of Georgia for educational purposes, thus giving birth to what is now North Georgia College & State University (NGCSU) — the second oldest public institution of higher education in Georgia. Founded in 1873 as North Georgia Agricultural College, the institution was established as a land-grant school of agriculture and mechanical arts, particularly mining engineering. As area gold mining resources were depleted and agricultural education was assumed by the University of Georgia, the mission of North Georgia evolved into one emphasizing arts and sciences.

NGCSU has the distinction of being the first co-educational college in the state and the first to graduate a woman, in 1878. The school was renamed North Georgia College in the summer of 1929. The college gained university status in 1996 and was renamed North Georgia College & State University. The Doctor of Physical Therapy degree was first offered in 2010.

Central to NGCU's mission is academic excellence in liberal arts, pre-professional, professional, and graduate programs. Military education, service, and leadership are additional components of the mission. NGCSU is one of only six senior military colleges in the United States, and is designated by the Georgia General Assembly as The Military College of Georgia. NGCSU has 750 ROTC cadets among its 6,500 students. Consistent with its mission, NGCSU has achieved distinction in multiple areas. In 2012, NGCSU was named one of three universities in the nation to pilot the Chinese flagship program for ROTC cadets as part of a Department of Defense initiative stressing language and culture expertise for US military officers. NGCSU earned the Community Engagement Classification in 2011 from the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching in recognition of collaboration between NGCSU and the region for the mutually beneficial exchange of knowledge and resources. NGCSU is a University System of Georgia leadership institution.

Current enrollment at NGCSU is approximately 6,000 undergraduate and 500 graduate students. Nearly 2,000 students live on campus. Entering SAT scores, retention rates, and graduation rates for NGCSU rank near the top of the state university sector of the University System of Georgia. Admission to NGCSU is selective.

Gainesville State College

Serving Northeast Georgia since 1964, Gainesville State College (GSC) is a non-residential unit of the University System of Georgia. The GSC Gainesville Campus is located 45 miles northeast of Atlanta in Oakwood, GA while the GSC Oconee Campus is in Watkinsville, Georgia.

The mission of Gainesville State College is to provide broad access to a quality liberal arts higher education primarily for the population of Northeast Georgia. Gainesville State College seeks to assure the success of its students and contribute to the quality of life in the surrounding region. The institution, with an emphasis on diversity and international issues, prepares students to function in a global society.

The College also values its role as a service organization that responds to the economic and educational needs of the community and reaches out to the citizens of Northeast Georgia. By offering continuing education programs, public service activities, cultural enrichment experiences, and forums for public discussion, the College expands its tradition of service beyond its immediate student body and into the community at large.

GSC is an access institution with approximately half of incoming freshman requiring at least one learning support course. In Fall 2012, the GSC student body was approximately 8,700 with slightly over half being female, one-fourth non-traditional, and two-thirds full-time. Approximately three-fourths of students attend the Gainesville Campus with one-fourth attending the Oconee Campus.

These degrees are being deactivated and will not be offered as of January 2013.*
GSC BS programs in biology and psychology began in fall 2012.

A policy is being created for the University of North Georgia, based on University System of Georgia Board of Regents recommendations, regarding the process of program deactivation for the designated A.A.S degrees and the length of time the program will remain open to currently enrolled students. Less than 20 students are enrolled in the applied associate degree programs being deactivated; they are receiving appropriate advising to complete their academic coursework. Faculty teaching in these programs will not be affected as GSC provided the general education courses and Lanier Technical College provided the specialized courses.

Graduate program deactivation will follow the BOR policy. The identified programs will be suspended for a maximum of two years. During the suspension period students enrolled in the program must complete their graduate degree requirements. If a student is unable to complete the degree requirements within that 2-year timeframe, the student will be advised about other degree programs in which to enroll with as minimal degree completion impact as possible. After the 2-year suspension period, the institution will notify the USG Office of Academic Programs requesting termination by the Board. The three graduate programs being deactivated will have no impact on students or faculty. The special education faculty teaching loads are being reassigned to either another graduate program or to an undergraduate program. Physical Education faculty teaching assignments are being assigned to the MS in physical education degree. The MED was deactivated when the MS was approved and provided a seamless transition for both students and faculty.
